NEW QUESTION: 1

Your company has set a policy that all Oracle Solaris 11 instances must have a backup boot environment created whenever software packages are added, removed, or updated. The current boot environment must not be modified. The backup boot environment must represent the system image before the procedure and the new boot environment must represent the image before the procedure. The image properties on your system are as follows: You are instructed to install the top utility.

Which two will allow the top package to be installed on the system while adhering to the company policy?

- A. pkg set-property be-policy create-backup pkg install top
- B. pkg set-property create-backup true pkg install top
- C. pkg install --be-name BE2 top
- D. pkg property pkg-install=backup-be pkg install top
- E. pkg set-property be-policy always-new pkg install top

Answer: C,E

Explanation:

By default, a new BE is automatically created when you perform one of the following operations:

*(D) Set the be-policy image policy to always-new. Under this policy, all package operations are performed in a new BE set as active on the next boot.

*Update particular key system packages such as some drivers and other kernel components. This can happen when you install, uninstall, update, change variant, or change facet.

*Often a new BE is created when you execute the pkg update command to update all packages that have updates available.

*Specify any of the following options: --be-name, --require-new-be, --backup-be-name, -require-backup-be.

Answer: A

*Proprietary Collectors, written in Novell's own language, always use variables based on the short tag to refer to event fields. The short tag name must be prefaced by a letter and underscore, where the letter indicates the data type for the field (i_ for integer, s_ for string).

*JavaScript Collectors usually refer to event fields using an "e." followed by the same user-friendly label set in Event Configuration in the Sentinel Control Center. For a Sentinel system with a default configuration, for example, the Initiator User Name would be referred to as "e.InitUserName" in the JavaScript Collector.
