NEW QUESTION: 1
You administer Windows 8.1 Enterprise client computers in your company network.
You need to prevent users from installing applications published by a specific publisher in Windows Store.
Which type of AppLocker rule should you create?
A. Packaged app
B. Script
C. Windows Installer
D. Executable
Answer: A
Explanation:

Packaged Apps and Packaged App Installer Rules in AppLocker

Commonly known as Windows apps, packaged apps can be installed through the Microsoft AppStore or can be side loaded using the Windows PowerShell cmdlets if you have an Enterprise license.
Packaged apps can be installed by a standard user unlike some desktop applications that sometimes require administrative privileges for installation. In this topic, desktop applications refer to Win32 apps that run on the classic user desktop.
In Windows Server 2012 and Windows 8, AppLocker enforces rules for packaged apps separately from desktop applications. A single AppLocker rule for a packaged app can control both the installation and the running of an app. Because all packaged apps are signed, AppLocker supports only publisher rules for packaged apps. A publisher rule for a packaged app is based on the following attributes of the app: Publisher name Package name Package version etro-apps-in-windows8-using-group-policy/ How manage Published (a.k.a Metro) Apps in Windows 8 using Group Policy Windows 8 is coming REALLY SOON and of course one of the big new things to computer with that is the new (Metro) Packaged Apps that run in the start screen. However these apps are very different and do not install like traditional apps to a path or have a true "executable" file to launch the program. Of course enterprises need a way to control these packaged apps and therefore Microsoft has added a new feature Packaged Apps option to the AppLocker feature.

An administrator can use this feature to only allow certain apps to download from the Windows App Store and/or use it to control what inbuilt Packaged Apps are allowed to run.
