NEW QUESTION: 1

Note: This question is part of a series of questions that present the same scenario. Each question in this series contains a unique solution. Determine whether the solution meets the stated goals.

The Account table was created by using the following Transact-SQL statement:

There are more than 1 billion records in the Account table. The Account Number column uniquely identifies each account. The ProductCode column has 100 different values. The values are evenly distributed in the table. Table statistics are refreshed and up to date.

You frequently run the following Transact-SQL SELECT statements:

You must avoid table scans when you run the queries.

You need to create one or more indexes for the table.

Solution: You run the following Transact-SQL statement:

Does the solution meet the goal?

- A. Yes
- B. No

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

Create a clustered index on the AccountNumber column as it is unique, not a non nonclustered one.

NEW QUESTION: 2

In which scenario will griddisks residing on the same celldisk have balanced performance characteristics in an X5 High Capacity Exadata Storage Server?

- A. griddisks on Flash-based celldisks
- B. griddisks on memory based celldisks
- C. griddisks on hard disk-based celldisk consumed by ASM when creating diskgroups using ASM-based Intelligent Data Placement (IDP)
- D. griddisks on hard disk-based celldisks consumed by the Database Smart Flash Cache

Answer: C

Explanation:

Intelligent Data Placement enables you to specify disk regions on Oracle ASM disks for best performance. Using the disk region settings, you can ensure that frequently accessed data is placed on the outermost (hot) tracks which have greater speed and higher bandwidth. In addition, files with similar access patterns are located physically close, reducing latency.

Intelligent Data Placement also enables the placement of primary and mirror extents into different hot or cold regions.
