Explanation:

Explanation

Box 1: Durable in-Memory OLTP
Databases containing memory-optimized tables, with or without native compiled stored procedures, are fully supported with Always On Availability Groups. There is no difference in the configuration and support for databases which contain In-Memory OLTP objects as compared to those without.

Box 2: Always on Availability groups
The Always On availability groups feature is a high-availability and disaster-recovery solution that provides an enterprise-level alternative to database mirroring. Always On availability groups maximizes the availability of a set of user databases for an enterprise. An availability group supports a failover environment for a discrete set of user databases, known as availability databases, that fail over together. An availability group supports a set of read-write primary databases and one to eight sets of corresponding secondary databases. Optionally, secondary databases can be made available for read-only access and/or some backup operations.
An availability group fails over at the level of an availability replica.

NEW QUESTION: 2

Examine this extract from the `/etc/ssh/sshd_config` file:
passwordAuthentication no
What is the effect of this parameter settings on the use of openSSH commands on both the client and server?

- A. The ssh daemon does not ask for a password before starting or stopping the sshd service.
- B. Passwords are not required and no ssh-keygen is required either. Only passphrase are required.
- C. Client users whose keys are not in the `authorized_keys` file on the server are unable to use passwords to authenticate themselves to the server.
- D. Client users whose keys are not in the `authorized_keys` file on the client are unable to use passwords to authenticate themselves to the server.

Answer: C

Explanation:

If you set `PasswordAuthentication` to `no`, you will no longer be able to use a login and password to authenticate and must use a login and public key instead (if `PubkeyAuthentication` is set to `yes`).

NEW QUESTION: 3

- A. Option D
- B. Option B
- C. Option C
- D. Option A

Answer: A,C
