- A. Rootguard configured on SW1 places the ports in root inconsistent state
- B. Loopguard configured on the New_Switch places the ports in loop inconsistent state
- C. Rootguard configured on SW2 places the ports in root inconsistent state
- D. Bpduguard configured on the New_Switch places the access ports in error-disable

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

On the new switch, we see that loopguard has been configured with the "spanning-tree guard loop" command.

The loop guard feature makes additional checks. If BPDUs are not received on a non-designated port, and loop guard is enabled, that port is moved into the STP loop-inconsistent blocking state, instead of the listening / learning / forwarding state. Without the loop guard feature, the port assumes the designated port role. The port moves to the STP forwarding state and creates a loop.
